Some recipes, for example, appear to be paraphrased from well-known chefs.

Postcolonial Subjects Francophone Women Writers

In Quebec, a few women writers, of whom the best known are Gabrielle Roy and Anne Hébert, have been critically acclaimed and widely studied by both men and women. Such experimental feminist writers as Nicole Brossard, France Théoret, Louky Bersianik, and Madeleine Gagnon have also been the subject of much critical work by women.<sup>1</sup> In fact, these powerful and well-established feminist writers, now in their forties and fifties, have been the focus of so much work by feminist critics that ...

The writings of these women emanate from the cultures of Africa and the Indian Ocean, the Middle East, the Caribbean, Southeast Asia, and Quebec and other French-speaking regions of Canada. By writing in French, the writers discussed in Postcolonial Subjects both acknowledge and write against the cultural heritage of France.

Postcolonial Subjects: Francophone Women Writers

'Postcolonial Subjects' is a collective project centered on questions of language, identity, and voice as they engage issues of gender, race, ethnicity, culture, and nation. The critical essays presented here focus on the literary contributions of contemporary women writing in French whose cultural ties, ethnic identities, and historical roots lie beyond the Hexagon, beyond the six-sided map of France.
